MGU – UGP (HONOURS) REGULAR EXAMINATION MARCH 2026

FOURTHY SEMESTER

LEADERSHIP SKILLS

Part A

1. Organizational environment influences leadership style because leaders must adapt their approach based on culture, structure, and situational demands.
2. Fiedler's theory suggests changing the situation may be better than changing the leader because leadership style is relatively fixed and effectiveness depends on situational favourability.
3. Autocratic leadership involves centralized decision-making by the leader, while democratic leadership involves participation of team members in decision-making.
4. A leader should remain calm, listen to the guest, take responsibility, and quickly coordinate with the team to resolve the complaint.
5. Influencing employee behaviour improves productivity and helps align individual actions with organizational goals.
6. Organizational Behaviour is the study of how individuals and groups behave within an organization.
7. A positive attitude improves customer service by creating friendly interactions and increasing customer satisfaction.
8. Personality refers to the unique combination of characteristics, behaviours, and emotional patterns that define an individual.
9. Learning style refers to the preferred way in which an individual absorbs, processes, and retains information.
10. One common cause of stress in organizations is excessive workload or unrealistic deadlines.
11. Transactional leadership manages sales staff by setting clear targets and rewarding employees based on performance.
12. Effective communication is important for a leader because it ensures clarity, coordination, and strong relationships within the team.
13. Conflict management is important because it prevents workplace tensions from affecting productivity and teamwork.
14. Recognition and appreciation of employee efforts is a key factor that influences employee morale.
15. In motivation, "needs" refer to internal desires or deficiencies that drive individuals to act in order to achieve satisfaction.

Part B

16. Autocratic leadership limits employee participation and creativity because decisions are made solely by the leader. It can also reduce employee morale and job satisfaction in the long term.
17. Effective leadership in a hotel improves productivity by motivating staff, coordinating teamwork, and maintaining service standards. Leaders who guide and support employees help ensure efficient operations and better guest satisfaction.
18. Authority provides leaders with the power to direct employees and allocate resources effectively. Proper use of authority helps maintain discipline and ensures that organizational goals are achieved efficiently.
19. Organizational Behaviour concepts such as motivation, communication, and leadership improve employee satisfaction. When employees feel valued and supported, their engagement and performance increase.
20. Group behaviour concepts help teams understand roles, communication patterns, and cooperation. Applying these concepts enables leaders to manage disagreements and promote collaboration.
21. Laissez-faire leadership is characterized by minimal supervision and high freedom for employees in decision-making. Employees are trusted to manage their own tasks with little direct control from the leader.

Part C

22. Leadership is the ability to influence and guide individuals or groups toward achieving organizational goals. Effective leadership is characterized by vision, communication skills, integrity, and the ability to motivate others.
23. LMX theory explains leadership through the relationship quality between a leader and each follower. High-quality relationships result in trust, support, and better performance, while low-quality relationships remain formal and limited.
24. Organizational culture refers to the shared values, beliefs, and practices that shape behaviour within an organization. A strong positive culture promotes teamwork, commitment, and long-term organizational success.
