MAHATMA GANDHI UNIVERSITY, KOTTAYAM

MGU-UGP (HONOURS) Regular EXAMINATION October 2025

Third SEMESTER

Discipline Specific Core Course (DSC) - MG3DSCSMG200 – HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT IN SPORTS (2024 ADMISSION ONWARDS)

QP Code -25900644

Part A

1. b). Strategic and proactive
2. a). Forecasting manpower supply and demand
3. c). Improve job performance
4. a). Bipartite relationship
5. a). Compensation management
6. a). Solving HR problems and making policies
7. b). Specific knowledge, skills, and abilities for a job
8. a). Relative importance of jobs
9. b). Lockout
10. b). Fresh graduates

Part B

11. The three general levels in the HR manager structure are:
    a. Operational/Specialist Level: Focuses on daily tasks like recruitment, payroll, and administration.
    b. Manager/Generalist Level: Oversees teams, manages employee relations, and implements policies.
    c. Strategic/Executive Level (HR Director/CHRO): Aligns HR strategy with overall business goals and organizational change.

12. Key objectives of job design: (any 2)
    a. Increase Productivity and Efficiency
    b. Enhance Employee Job Satisfaction and Motivation

c. Improve Quality of Work

d. Reduce Employee Turnover and Absenteeism

e. Meet the Organizational and Technical Requirements of the job

13. The Evaluation stage is the final phase of the ADDIE model (Analysis, Design, Development, Implementation, and Evaluation) of instructional design. The purpose of the Evaluation stage is to measure the effectiveness and efficiency of the entire instructional program and determine if the learning objectives set in the Analysis phase were met.

14. A grievance procedure is a formal, documented process that an employer establishes to manage, investigate, and resolve complaints (grievances) raised by an employee about their working conditions, treatment, or relationship with management or colleagues.
15. Job description helps in sports event management: (any 2)
    - Defines Roles and Responsibilities
    - Aids in Recruitment and Staffing
    - Improves Resource Allocation and Efficiency
    - Facilitates Training and Onboarding
    - Establishes Performance Standards

16. Statutory benefits are legally mandated essentials (e.g., social security) that employers must provide. Non-statutory benefits are optional perks (e.g., gym memberships) offered to attract and retain talent.
17. Advantages of trade unions for workers (Any 2):

    - Higher Wages and Better Benefits
    - Enhanced Job Security
    - Improved Working Conditions
    - Collective Voice and Power
    - Fair Grievance Procedures
    - Promotion of Workplace Equity
    - Access to Training and Skill Development

18. Social importance of HRM (any 2):

    - Employment Generation and Maintenance

- Fulfilment of Legal and Social Responsibility
- Promotion of Workplace Equity and Justice
- Enhancement of Employee Well-being and Quality of Life
- Development of Human Capital for the Nation
- Fostering a Positive Organizational Culture
- Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) Implementation

19. Limitations and challenges of the employee selection process in Human Resource Management (HRM):

    - Imperfect Prediction Criteria
    - Bias and Subjectivity
    - External Environmental Constraints
    - High Cost and Time Consumption
    - Applicant Deception and Impression Management

20. Traditional performance appraisal methods:

    - Graphic Rating Scale
    - Ranking Method (Straight Ranking)
    - Paired Comparison Method
    - Checklist Method
    - Essay Appraisal Method
    - Confidential Report
    - Forced Distribution Method
    - Critical Incident Method

21. Effective grievance handling provides a formal, fair channel to resolve employee issues quickly and systematically, preventing them from escalating into major industrial disputes, collective unrest, and costly strikes.
22. The core objective of Human Resource Planning (HRP) is to ensure the organization has the right number of people with the right skills, at the right time, and in the right place to achieve its strategic goals.

Part C

23. Integration is a vital scope of HRM because it is the process of harmonizing employee goals with organizational goals. It involves motivating and managing industrial relations to ensure all staff members are willingly and effectively contributing to the company's success and fostering a cohesive work culture.

24. A Job Description is a document that focuses on the job itself, detailing the specific duties, responsibilities, and working conditions of the role. In contrast, the Job Specification focuses on the ideal candidate, outlining the necessary skills, qualifications, education, and experience required for a person to successfully perform those duties.

25. Skill-based pay rewards an employee for the capabilities and knowledge they possess and acquire, driving continuous learning. Performance-based pay, however, rewards employees for achieving measurable results and high output in their current role. Together, they create a flexible system that rewards both potential (skills) and proven contribution (performance).

26. Measures to prevent industrial disputes arising from working conditions:
    - Maintain Safe and Healthy Environment
    - Regular Consultative Committees
    - Clear and Consistent Work Rules
    - Proactive Maintenance and Upgrades
    - Effective Grievance Procedure
    - Fair Workload Distribution

27. Job descriptions (JDs) benefit modern organizations by providing clarity on roles, streamlining recruitment, and setting the basis for performance management. However, their limitations include rigidity, making them quickly outdated in fast-paced environments, and potentially stifling employee creativity or willingness to take on new tasks outside the defined scope.

28. The TNA process follows a three-stage approach:
    a. Decide on skill sets
    b. Evaluate the skills of staff
    c. Highlight the skills gap