11. Coonan Cross Oath (1653)

The Coonan cross oath on 3rd January 1653 is the historic revolt of the St. Thomas Christmas against the imposition of Latin rule.

This was the culmination of the general unrest felt among the St. Thomas Christians due to the enforced decisions of the Synod of Diamper.

The Malabar Christians became enraged and assembled before a cross at Mattancherry near Cochin on January 3rd 1653 and holding a rope tied to the cross swear that they would no more be subordinate to the Latin rule in Church life.

This event 1653 broke the 50 years old Roman supremacy imposed at the Synod of Diamper in 1599.

12. SYNOD OF DIAMPER

.1599 June 20, Arch bishop Alexis de Menezes conveyed a council of the church representatives to make them to agree to come under pope.

. Synod started at udayamperor, The St Thomas Christians revolted against it.

. Through this synod St Thomas Christians accept the Latin liturgy, nine matters affected the ST. Thomas Christians church

SYRIAN COLONIZATION'S

Immigration of Syrian Christians from Persia under Thomas of Cana:

The St. Thomas Christians of Malabar had trade connections with the Syrians of Persia and Babylon. This relation became more intimate because of immigration of Christians from Persia in the 4th Century.

The arrival of these colonists increased the prestige and strength of the Malabar church. .It helped the Malabar church to carry on commercial relations and trade with foreign countries like Egypt, Venice etc

It paved the way for the emergence of two sets of Christians in India namely the 'Thekkumbhagakkar' and 'Vadakkumbhagakar'.

Immigration of the Syrian Christians in the 9th Century. In 825 A. D. a group of Christians from Persia reached Malabar under the leadership of a merchant Sabariso.
