QP CODE: 24900208 scheme

MAHATMA GANDHI UNIVERSITY, KOTTAYAM

FIRST SEMESTER MGU-UGP (HONOURS) REGULAR EXAMINATION NOVEMBER 2024 First Semester Multi-Disciplinary Course MG1MDCPOL102 - CYBER POLITICS (2024 ADMISSION ONWARDS)

1. D all the above
2. B To improve the quality of public services
3. D all the above
4. A The use of electronic media to enhance democratic processes.
5. A The gap in internet access between developed and developing countries
6. B Maneka Gandhi
7. D Information and Communications Technology
8. A Programme
9. D None of the above
10. A An automatic pilot
11. E-governance refers to the use of digital technologies, particularly the internet, to deliver government services, interact with citizens, and manage public affairs. traditional governance tends to rely on more manual, centralized, and less efficient methods.
12. Promotes transparency by making government processes, decisions, and services accessible online.: Accountability: Efficiency: Inclusiveness: Accessibility: delivering services that meet the needs and expectations of citizens: Security
13. Social media platforms like Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and YouTube have reshaped how citizens engage with politics, interact with government officials, and participate in democratic processes. Positive Impacts → Increased Political Participation, Accessibility and Inclusivity, Direct Communication with Politicians, Mobilization and Advocacy Negative impacts → Spread of Misinformation and Fake News, wrong Political Polarization , Manipulation and Influence Campaigns, Decreased Trust in Institutions, increased rolling and Harassments etc
14. → provide a public space where individuals can freely express their opinions, debate ideas, and engage in conversations about political and social matters→ for the organization of grassroots movements and social activism → serve as tools for political mobilization and engagement.→ provide access to a wide range of perspectives, allowing users to learn about topics from multiple angles → host specialized communities where experts, professionals, and enthusiasts gather to discuss topics of interest
15. Socioeconomic Factors → Income Inequality , Education and Digital Literacy, Affordability of Services , Employment and Job Accessibility Geographic Factors → Rural and Remote Areas , Urban vs. Rural Divide .Internet Infrastructure and Access. Demographic Factors → Age, Gender, Disability, Language and Cultural Barriers, Technology Availability and Device Access Political and Policy Factors → Government Investment and Policy, Government policies, Digital Inclusion Initiatives
16. Facebook is a more personal, community-oriented platform that enables detailed sharing of life updates, content creation, and deeper social connections. It is ideal for maintaining personal relationships and exploring interests. Twitter, is a fast-paced platform focused on real-time communication, short-form content, and public conversation. It excels in delivering immediate updates and fostering public discourse, particularly on news, politics, and social movements.

17. Main purpose is to establish guidelines, rules, and practices aimed at ensuring the security, privacy, and proper use of digital technologies and information systems. These policies are critical for protecting organizations, individuals, and governments from a wide range of cyber risks, including data breaches, cyberattacks, and misuse of technology.
18. Refers to the ability to access, analyse, evaluate, and create media in various forms→ know modern information techniques → avail different media messages through news, social media, advertisements, and entertainment → it empowers individuals to critically engage with media content, understand its influence, and make informed decisions about the media they consume and create.
19. Cyber politics is the intersection of technology, politics, and governance, focusing on how digital platforms, online spaces, and cyber technologies influence political processes, policies, and power dynamics. Key concepts are → Digital Activism and Political Movements: Social Media and Political Campaigning: Surveillance and Privacy: Cybersecurity and National Security: Disinformation and Misinformation: E-Governance and Digital Democracy: Data Privacy and Digital Rights Impacts → Transformation of Political Campaigning: Global Political Mobilization: change of Trust in Media and Institutions: changing nature of Political Polarization: influence on Democracy and Governance.
20. Information abuse in the digital age refers to the misuse or manipulation of data, content, and digital platforms to deceive, exploit, or harm individuals and society. Various forms are →Misinformation and Disinformation , privacy Violations , Online Harassment and Cyberbullying, ake News and Media Manipulation, Social Media Echo Chambers and Polarization, Exploitation of Personal Data Impacts Impact on Individuals→ Psychological Effects: Behavioural Consequences: Loss of Privacy and Security Impact on Society → Erosion of Trust: Social Fragmentation: Crisis of Truth.
21. traditional governance tends to rely on more manual, centralized, and less efficient methods. Key Components→ Government-to-Citizen, Government-to-Business, Government-to-Government , Government-to-Employees, E-Participation, Digital Infrastructure benefits → increased Efficiency: Cost Reduction: Improved Transparency and Accountability: Better Citizen Engagement: Improved Accessibility and Inclusion: aster Service Delivery: Boosting National Security and Crisis Management: Data- based Decision Making
22. E-participation platforms are increasingly being used to engage citizens in decision-making processes, enhance transparency, and promote democracy. Challenges → collection of personal data from citizens they may not fully understand the terms of use or the implications of sharing their personal information. Data Transparency is another challenge , gathering excessive data - Governments and private entities must implement strong data protection policies, ensure transparency and informed consent, safeguard citizen privacy, and adhere to relevant legal frameworks to protect the rights of individuals and promote meaningful participation.