BSM DEGREE (CBCS) REGULAR EXAMINATIONS, November 2024

First Semester MGU-UGP Honours

Bachelor of Sports Management

Discipline specific course - MGIDSCSMG100 - Introduction To sports Management

2024 Admission Onwards

Section A

1. C
2. B
3. B
4. C
5. A
6. C
7. D
8. B
9. B
10. B

Section B

11. What is the definition of planning in Management

Ans. In management, planning is the process of defining organizational goals, developing strategies to achieve those goals, and determining the necessary actions and resources required

12. If a company is experiencing rapid growth which type of plan would be most beneficial?Strategic or operational why?

Ans. strategic plan would be most beneficial for a company experiencing rapid growth because it focuses on long-term goals, overall direction, and resource allocation, ensuring sustainable expansion and alignment with the company's vision. However, operational plans are also essential for managing day-to-day activities effectively during growth.

13. Why is performance Review critical in MBO process

Ans. Performance review is critical in the Management by Objectives (MBO) process because it:

1. Measures Progress: Evaluates whether employees are achieving their set objectives.

2. Provides Feedback: Identifies strengths and areas for improvement.

3. Ensures Alignment: Confirms that individual goals support organizational objectives.

4. Promotes Accountability: Encourages employees to stay focused and committed.

5. Facilitates Adjustments: Allows for realignment of goals or strategies if needed.

Regular reviews ensure the MBO process remains effective and goal-oriented.

14. Why is it important to balance responsibility and authority while delegating tasks

Ans. Balancing responsibility and authority while delegating tasks is important because it ensures that the person assigned the task has the power to make necessary decisions and take actions to complete it effectively. Without authority, they may face obstacles they cannot overcome, leading to inefficiency and frustration.

15. What are the different types of organisational structure

Ans. Functional,horizontal,matrix,divisional etc

16. What are the key elements of directing process ?

Ans. The key elements of the directing process are:

1. Supervision: Overseeing the work of subordinates to ensure tasks are completed effectively.

2. Motivation: Inspiring employees to achieve organizational goals.

3. Communication: Facilitating the exchange of information and ideas to ensure clarity and understanding.

4. Leadership: Guiding and influencing employees to work towards common objectives.

5. Coordination: Ensuring harmony among team members and aligning individual efforts with organizational goals.

17. Explain why decision making is a vital skill for a manager

Ans. Decision-making is vital for a manager because it directly impacts the organization's success. Managers must analyze situations, evaluate options, and choose the best course of action to achieve goals, solve problems, and adapt to changes. Effective decision-making ensures efficient resource allocation, team alignment, and long-term growth.

18. How does sports globalization foster cultural Change

Ans. Sports globalization fosters cultural change by bringing people from different backgrounds together, promoting the exchange of traditions, values, and ideas. It increases cross-cultural understanding, introduces diverse practices, and influences lifestyles, fashion, and attitudes worldwide, creating a more interconnected and inclusive global culture.

19. Explain the principal of division of work as explained by Henri Fayol

Ans. Henri Fayol's principle of division of work states that tasks should be divided among individuals or groups based on their skills and expertise. This specialization increases efficiency, improves performance, and enhances productivity by enabling workers to focus on specific tasks and develop expertise in their roles.

20. Define sports Management

Ans. Sports Management is the field of business that deals with planning, organizing, directing, controlling, and overseeing various aspects of the sports industry. It involves the application of management principles to sports organizations, teams, events, facilities, and athletes

21. How do fans serve as key stakeholders in sports management?

Ans. Fans are key stakeholders in sports management because they drive revenue through ticket sales, merchandise, and viewership, which attract sponsorships and media deals. Their loyalty and engagement directly influence a team's reputation, success, and long-term sustainability. Effective management must prioritize fan experience and satisfaction to maintain and grow support.

22. Explain the role of a sports marketing manager in sports management

Ans. Sports Marketing Manager plays a vital role in the sports management industry by overseeing the promotion and commercialization of sports teams, events, and products. Their responsibilities blend marketing strategies with a passion for sports, aiming to build a strong brand presence, attract fans, and generate revenue.

Section C

23. Explain the scope of management

Ans. The scope of management covers key functions such as planning, organizing, staffing, directing, controlling, coordinating, decision-making, and managing innovation. These functions ensure that resources are used efficiently to achieve organizational goals.

Management applies at various levels of an organization and adapts to changing needs, from strategy development to daily operations.

24. Explain the function of FIFA in global sports

Ans. FIFA (Fédération Internationale de Football Association) is the global governing body for soccer (football). Its functions include organizing international competitions like the FIFA World Cup, setting global rules and standards for the sport, overseeing rankings, promoting soccer development worldwide, and ensuring fair play and integrity in the game. FIFA also works with member associations to grow the sport and increase its reach across all continents.

25. Explain the role of sponsors in sports management

Ans. Sponsors play a crucial role in sports management by providing financial support, resources, and promotional opportunities. They help fund events, teams, or athletes, enhancing the sport's reach and visibility. In return, sponsors gain brand exposure, marketing opportunities, and alignment with popular events or figures. Sponsorships contribute to the growth and sustainability of sports organizations and events, benefiting both sponsors and the sports industry.

26. Define the three levels of management and briefly describe the responsibilities of three levels

Ans. The three levels of management are:

1. Top-level management: This includes executives such as CEOs, presidents, and board members. Their responsibilities involve setting the organization’s overall goals, strategies, and policies, making major decisions, and ensuring the company’s direction aligns with its mission and vision. They also represent the organization to external stakeholders.

2. Middle-level management: This group consists of department heads, branch managers, and division leaders. They are responsible for implementing the strategies set by top management, managing daily operations, coordinating between departments, and ensuring that teams meet their targets. They also provide feedback to top management.

3. Lower-level management: This level includes supervisors, team leaders, and foremen. Their main responsibilities are overseeing the day-to-day activities of employees, ensuring tasks are completed on time, maintaining discipline, and addressing immediate operational issues. They act as a bridge between workers and higher management.

27. If you were starting a new business how would you organise it's resources to achieve efficiency

Ans. To organize resources efficiently in a new business, I would:

1. Set clear goals and define roles to ensure alignment and focus.

2. Hire the right people and provide continuous training.

3. Implement a budget and manage cash flow carefully.

4. Invest in automation tools to streamline tasks and improve productivity.

5. Establish processes and SOPs to standardize operations.

6. Monitor performance using KPIs and adjust strategies as needed.

7. Optimize physical resources like inventory and equipment to reduce waste.

This approach ensures streamlined operations, reduces inefficiencies, and allows for scalable growth.

28. Explain how controlling help in achieving organisational goals

Ans. Controlling helps achieve organizational goals by monitoring performance, identifying deviations from the plan, and taking corrective actions to stay on track. It ensures resources are used efficiently, improves decision-making, and promotes continuous improvement, keeping the organization aligned with its objectives.